911Insight is accepting resumes for the positions of Consultant and Senior Consultant.

ABOUT THE COMPANY

911Insight is an independent professional services firm providing management consulting assistance to state and local government in the areas of financial planning, performance assessment and the implementation of information technology and telecommunications capabilities. The company specializes in the mission-critical facilities and systems utilized by public safety organizations. With locations in Santa Monica and Seattle, our engagements are generally located in the western United States. Further background about the company can be found at www.911insight.com.

We provide a flexible, hands-on working environment with highly visible project assignments. Opportunities for continued professional development and certification are provided.

POSITION DESCRIPTIONS

Our consultants perform fact-finding and analysis of complex organizational, financial, regulatory and technological issues, providing comprehensive and thoughtful recommendations to our clients. Areas of inquiry are typically cross-disciplinary and require substantial primary research. The role of a consultant requires working with individuals at all levels of the client organization, as well as multiple external stakeholders and the public at large.

Candidates must have a proven ability to write clearly and persuasively. Position requires frequent public presentations and leadership of group meetings. Attributes of the ideal candidate include: the ability to work independently; careful attention to detail; active listening skills; emotional maturity; and client empathy.

Consultants are expected to accept professional guidance in execution of project assignments, develop positive client relationships, and to manage short-term and long-term assigned tasking. The expectations of Senior Consultants further include the ability to work independently and successfully accomplish the tasking required of client assignments.

Our consulting engagements cover a number of functional and technical areas. These include: wireless information technology; fixed and mobile radio communications; computer aided dispatch; mobile data/automatic vehicle location; public safety agency records management; document, fingerprint and photographic imaging; Enhanced and Wireless 9-1-1; mapping and geographic information systems; voice and data telecommunications networks; law enforcement message switching; distributed computing environments; systems integration; data conversion; business process modeling and reengineering; systems development and testing; organizational development; management and performance audits; risk assessments; financial management and planning, cost estimation and budgeting; grant writing; operational assessments; cost allocation strategies; business planning; development of policies and procedures; carrier tariffs and regulatory environments; project management; vendor contract negotiations; inter-governmental agreements; and facilities planning.
